

INTRODUCTION — “A Tournament System Built for Everyone”

The Para Circuit exists to solve a problem that every competitive community eventually faces:

How do you reward creativity, celebrate community, and still offer meaningful high-level competition — without forcing anyone to pay to participate?

Our answer is a blended tournament ecosystem where:

- the community stays free and vibrant
- creativity is unlimited
- competition feels prestigious
- paid events feel valuable instead of mandatory

The Para Circuit gives players complete freedom in how they want to participate — and creates a natural, exciting path toward elite-level play.

WHY WE BUILT IT — “The Problem With Traditional Systems”

Most tournament structures fall into one of two traps:

1. Everything is paywalled.

Only paid events matter.

Free events are meaningless.

New players get discouraged.

Community ends up feeling under appreciated and “whale cliques” start to form.

Not always pay to win but often pay to thrive.

2. Everything is free.

No prestige.

No hierarchy.

No funding mechanism.

No serious competition.

For some reason this: DOA. If you don't present utility to the competitors as to the community, its like putting water on a rock...

Both extremes fail.

So we designed a system that:

- avoids paywalls
- avoids participation inflation
- rewards players in multiple ways
- keeps the competitive ladder meaningful
- supports sustainable, risk-free prize pools

It's a system that grows with the community — not at their expense.

Eternal Galaxy

THE CORE IDEA 💡

Don't restrict creative submissions and participation as a method of qualification.

Restrict what type of XP they give.

Paid tournaments become the only source of certain premium XP types.

That makes them optional... but super attractive.

Split XP Into 3 Types,

CREATIVE XP (C-XP)

Earned from:

- lore essays 📄
- pop-culture breakdowns 📊
- history posts 🏺
- fan art 🖼️
- faction assignments 🏠
- academy submissions 🏫

Unlimited.

Let people firehose this all day long.

COMMUNITY XP (U-XP)

Earned from:

- free tournaments 🏆
- daily quizzes ?
- voting in polls 🗳️
- attending events 👥
- joining voice discussions 🗣️

Also unlimited.

This is your “open world” grind.

COMPETITIVE XP (K-XP)

Earned ONLY from:

- paid tournaments
- seasonal ladders
- official bracketed events

This is the only finite, scarce XP stream.

Qualification for cash events requires a SKEW of all three types.

2. Blend Requirements:

Cash Qualifiers Need: C-XP + U-XP + K-XP*

For example, to enter the big cash finals:

- 500 C-XP (creative engagement)
- 500 U-XP (community activity)
- 300 K-XP (competitive validation — only from paid events)

This way:

- Creative grinders can get 2/3 of the way there.
- Free tournament grinders get 2/3 of the way there.
- But nobody can hit the finish line without touching paid tournaments.

This feels natural.

Not forced.

Not punitive.

Just rewarding.

3. Reward Paid Tournaments With XP TYPES, Not XP Quantity

This is the secret sauce.

People shouldn't join because "paid = more XP."

They join because "paid = XP I literally can't get anywhere else."

K-XP becomes:

- rare
- prestigious
- the "badge of competition"
- the soft paywall that isn't actually a paywall

Paid tournaments now feel like:

- the place to prove skill
- the source of "competitive legitimacy"
- the necessary ingredient for big cash invitations

Paid Event Perks

These perks are optional but hugely motivating:

- K-Streak Bonuses
- Paid-Event Titles
- Exclusive cosmetic borders
- Faction prestige multipliers
- Leaderboard weighting
- Seasonal "Champion Credibility Points"

These never touch the free pipelines.

Free pipelines still GIVE XP — but never these perks.

People will chase these perks like crazy.

“Creativity fuels progression. Competition fuels prestige.”

— The Para Circuit Philosophy

4. Award Tickets Instead of XP for Paid Events

Any tournament (including paid) can award:

- Tickets
- Seals
- Badges
- Stamps

These are needed alongside XP (open ranking system) to enter major prize events.

So qualification becomes:

XP (free pipelines) + Tickets (paid events) = entry to cash tournaments

This is chef's kiss clean legally, because:

- XP = engagement
- Tickets = proof of competitive participation
- Neither is money! No one feels broke within their rank, no exclusivity and Uncle Sam endorses.
- Combining them = totally skill-based and safe

(Optional) 6. Make Paid Tournaments the Only Place to Earn “Placement XP”

Winners and top finishers get:

- Ranking Points
- Standing Bonuses
- Season Rating

Free tournaments never give these — they're purely casual leveling.

Now players who want to compete for real prizes:

- don't feel forced
- but feel naturally pulled

Fun Fact

Did you know?

Our XP system mirrors the reward loops of TFT, Magic Arena, and Runeterra — but with a Para twist.

PS this varied XP idea allows for so much freedom that freeplay could have its own Qualifying Ladder

5. Creative Submissions “Soft Cap Themselves” Through Diminishing Returns

You don't cap quantity.

You cap marginal value.

Example:

- First creative submission of the week = 100 C-XP
- Second = 80
- Third = 60

- ...then it stabilizes at a baseline (20)

So the system feels infinite but rewards variety, not spam.

No artificial limits, but pace naturally slows.

Elite Cash Finals Require Reviewing Other Players' Submissions,

Another genius incentive:

To hit the top-tier events, players need:

- 200 Creative Review Points
- 200 Community Review Points
- 100 Competitive Review Points

Only paid tournament participants can earn Competitive Review Points

Because only paid tournaments allow you to judge:

- deck concepts
- game decisions
- replays
- faction tactics

BOOM — paid events become essential for “peer validation.” We provide a platform for expression and a platform for research and development.

SUMMARY — The Master Formula

You don't force players into paid events.

You bake the incentives into the structure of qualification:

Unlimited pipelines (creative, community, free play) → XP

Paid tournaments → unique XP types + competitive perks + rating + tickets

Cash tournaments require:

XP + K-XP/Tickets/Competitive Perks/Ratings

Paid = optional

Paid = advantaged

Paid = prestige

Paid = pathway to the finals

Players feel:

- respected
- empowered
- not paywalled
- but incentivized as hell

Prize Funding Explained

K-XP (from paid events) becomes a proxy for money spent.

You never spend 100% of expected income.

You take:

- the minimum floor K-XP inflow
- multiply by “$ per K-XP”
- subtract a reserve buffer
- THAT becomes your guaranteed prize pool.

This protects you from:

- variance
- off months
- unexpected dips
- seasonal fluctuations

Your floors are ALWAYS covered.

Just announce more tournaments whenever

STEP 3 — Route Funding Into Two Buckets

Open Events (Open Cash Brackets)

Funded by general K-XP inflow.

Anyone can qualify through:

- Creative XP
- Community XP
- Free tournaments
- AND a small amount of K-XP

The Open brackets give:

- modest cash
- high access
- big participation loops
- seasonal energy

Invitationals (Champions Circuit)

Funded by satellite and K-XP only — meaning:

Players earn:

- Titles
- Streaks
- Badges
- Placement bonuses
- K-XP from finishing top X

That subset of qualifying becomes elite-budget option funding the higher prize pools.

The satellites (paid events) naturally feed the invitational fund.

We calculate prize pools by:

1. Measuring K-XP earned
2. Applying a fixed dollar value
3. Researching active player base
4. Subtracting a safe reserve
5. Using the remainder as the guaranteed prize fund

Eternal Galaxy

Players should walk away feeling:

- valued
- empowered
- creatively free
- part of a real community
- excited to compete
- NOT paygated
- but naturally pulled toward paid tournaments through prestige, titles, and advancement

This creates a circuit that is:

- fair
- fun
- scalable
- community-driven
- financially stable

...and most importantly, built for the long haul.

CONCLUSION — “A Circuit Where Everyone Has a Path”

The Para Circuit isn't just a tournament system.

It's a philosophy:

Let creativity thrive.

Let the community flourish.

Let competition feel earned.

Make paid events optional — but irresistible.

This structure allows us to grow sustainably, reward players across all playstyles, and build a competitive ecosystem that's both welcoming and prestigious.

It's the blueprint for a circuit that respects the players and strengthens the community — from the first free event to the highest-tier Invitational final.

Eternal Galaxy